What do you want to be when you grow up?

by Yeung Jyu Ting 6A

When I grow up, I want to be a teacher because I think this job is meaningful and interesting for me.

If I can do this job, I will teach students the meanings of the words and teach them to read some poems because I want them to know more words and have good marks in exam. Then, they can go to good secondary schools. Teachers must be patient and friendly. They need to teach students. Teachers also need to speak in English or Cantonese correctly.

I think the job is suitable for me because I like to help people and I can teach some students. In some places, some children are poor so they can't study. I want to help them.

I hope I can be a teacher. Before I do this job, I will read more books so that I know more words and I am brave to have more performance in front of people. I know I will be a good teacher when I grow up.

Detective Story - Ghostly thief by Cheung Shut Yee Feeney 6D

Roy was one of the famous detectives in England. One day, he received a mystical letter. There were a few words written on it. "Would you please meet me at 9 pm at the Café near your home?" Roy's head was full of questions but he still went to the Café to meet the client.

At 9 pm, he met the one who asked for his help. It was a lady with blonde curly hair. She looked very anxious. After a few minutes, Roy decided to help her. Roy followed the lady to her house that night. "Look! The ghost is over there!" the lady whispered to Roy. "He will scare me and ask for money. Oh! He is coming towards me!" Roy hid himself quickly and saw what happened. The ghost came closer and it had a knife! "Money or your life?" it asked. At that moment, Roy jumped out and caught the ghost. The ghost was actually the "famous" thief!

On the second day, the headline of the newspaper was "Famous detective, Roy caught the terrible ghostly thief!" The lady and Roy smiled happily.

A Reply Letter

by Kwan Hoi Wai 6B

Dear Enormous Crocodile,

Thank you for your invitation. I am sorry to tell you that I would not go to your party.

I do not eat children. Children are fat because they eat too much unhealthy food such as chocolate and chips. They are dirty, too. They like to play games in the park in hot summer. When they go home, they do not take a bath immediately. If you eat them, you will get sick.

Besides, if you eat children, their parents will hunt you down. You will die and they will use your skin to make crocodile skin handbags.

You can eat other food instead of children. Fruit and vegetables are healthy. Cheese and milk help you grow bigger. I like bananas. I will be happy if you hold a banana party for me.

Will you take my advice? I am looking forward to your reply.

Best Wishes,
Cute Monkey

Missing Cookies

by Leung Lok Yi Tiffany 6D

Today I felt very hungry after I finished my homework. I took a packet of cookies from the shelf and put it on my desk before I washed my hands.

When I came back, the packet of cookies disappeared! I asked my mum if she saw it, but she said she did not. Therefore, I asked my brother. "Ummm..... I did see it!" he answered. "Where is it now?" I asked. "It is in my tummy!" he answered me in a frightened voice.

I felt angry and told my mum about it. She punished my brother and asked him to say sorry to me. Still, I am feeling very angry with my brother now!

Do you like the transportation in 1950's or nowadays?

by Wong Ka Yan Kiki 6C

I would rather take the transportation nowadays than take the transportation in 1950's. The MTR and buses nowadays are faster than those in 1950's. It doesn't take people too long to travel. Passengers spend less time to go between places. They arrive at their destination quickly. It is much faster than before.

Besides, the buses are bigger and the trains are longer. They can carry a lot of people.

In conclusion, I would prefer the transportation nowadays to those in 1950's because I love to travel comfortably.

Mandy	(excited)Look! That crocodile is so cute. I want to hug him.
Cindy	Me too. It is adorable. Let me hug it first!

Narrator:	Suddenly, Captain America jumped out and shouted loudly at the girls.
Captain America:	Dangerous! Stand back! That is not a doll. He is the Enormous Crocodile. He wants to eat you all.
N1	Mandy and Cindy were shocked. So they ran away as fast as they could.
Girls:	(Scared) Help! Help! Captain America please help us.
EC	Go away! Captain America! If you don't, I will eat you too.
Captain America	Oh, you wicked beast! You will be sorry. (angrily)
